Now That the Toll Bridges Are Gone

State Senator James Pilkinton and Representative Royce Weisenberger are back home from El Dorado where they attended a conference on how to eliminate some of the interstate barriers which the legislatures of the various states have put on the statute books. Tax experts say there are now between 1,000 and 1,400 laws discriminating between the products of rival states, and otherwise hindering the free exchange of commodities, with the inevitable result that the farmers and other producers have to take less for their raw materials.

Plans Underway For Free Fair in Hempstead County

Committee Wants Fair With No Admission Charge

WILL ASK FUNDS

More Premiums For Exhibits and Amuse- ments

The Chamber of Commerce recognizing the importance of agriculture to the prosperity of Hope has devoted a large part of its time and energy to encouraging the farmers of Hempstead County to produce better crops and, to furnish a better market for everything the farmer has to sell.

For the past two years the Chamber of Commerce has sponsored a county fair, offering in prizes more than $2,000 worth of premiums for better livestock and other farm crops. It

It has always seemed to me that the courts were derelict in their duty in permitting a legislature to tax a commodity simply to protect some other commodity that was grown within the state.

For this is a tariff—and the federal constitution specifically forbids the states passing tariff laws against each other.

But the courts let the legislatures run unchecked. As a result, Wisconsin and other dairy states adopt tax laws penalizing oleomargarine, which is made in part from cottonseed-oil, to protect their butter; and, in retaliation, Arkansas and other cotton states adopt tax laws penalizing Wisconsin butter, to protect their cotton.

Of course a state passing such a law does not call it a tariff. The law is disguised as a revenue measure—and the courts wink at it and let it go.

But a showdown is due. All kinds of foolish laws have been passed, as legislatures gave way to the demands of "pressure groups" until today our free American republic begins to look as though it had been broken up into 48 Balkan states, each with its own set of laws designed to help its own agriculture and industry, and hurt the other fellow's.

There is no reason clear to a layman why the legal mind should be confused over this question of taxing.

Christian Church to Build $10,000 Structure in Hope

New Building Is to Be Erected in Near Future

ON PRESENT SITE

New Sunday School Unit Also to Be Built

A campaign has been inaugurated by members of First Christian church for the construction of a new church building that will cost approximately $10,000. It was learned Thursday.

The new structure will be erected on the site of the present building, at North Main and Avenue B.

At a recent meeting of the church congregation the following committee was appointed to have charge of the plans:

B. L. Rettig, Dr. E. S. Richards and Jewell Moore.

In addition to the new church building, the old auditorium will be remodeled and a new Sunday school unit installed. Construction will start in the near future.

Under the leadership of the pastor, the Rev. John Keith Gregory, the membership has rapidly increased and a larger building is needed.

States Plan Drive on Trade Barriers

Pilkinton, Weisenberg- er Attend El Dorado Meet

Senator James H. Pilkinton and Representative Royce Weisenberger Wednesday attended a conference called by the El Dorado Chamber of Commerce at El Dorado, to discuss the subject of interstate trade barriers.

Representatives of the Shreveport and Monroe (La.) Chambers of Commerce were in attendance, and E. R. Burrows, secretary of Shreveport's Chamber of Commerce, was the principal speaker. He emphasized the need of the various states and groups of their citizens co-operating locally or by reciprocity to solve the problems raised by the rapid increase of interstate barriers of all kinds in order to avoid the necessity of congressional action. He recounted how Louisiana has through the efforts of civic groups recently effected agreements with

ITALY "AT PEACE"

Mussolini Speaks Plainly to People of Italy

LONDON —(AP)—The House of Commons recessed Thursday until May 21, leaving the Chamberlain government apparently determined to remain in office on the strength of Wednesday night's slim margin on a vote of confidence.

Meanwhile, Britain's war effort was stepped up by a royal decree making 2,500,000 more men available for military service.

Chamberlain, members of his war cabinet and Opposition leaders were reported in secret consultations. Geoffrey Mander, Left Winger, said the talks were to decide whether "by getting rid of the chancellor of the exchequer and the secretary for air the prime minister might be allowed to carry on with partially fresh colleagues."

Mander told the house that this in his opinion would be "perfectly useless."

A new registration notice, affecting 19-year-olds and men between the ages of 21-36, will increase the number of men liable for service or already under arms to 4,500,000.

LONDON —(AP)—Neville Chamberlain remained the master of Britain's war government by the narrow margin of 81 votes Wednesday night after beating off for the moment criticism which had threatened his ministry.

Hiding Behind Generalities

There is a great debate going on in this country today—Isolation vs. Internationalism. The more highly intellectual a writer is, the more emphatically he goes to bat for one side or another. And yet this is largely shadow-boxing. For this rousing debate, with its two glittering generalities of "Isolation" and "Internationalism" has a great deal of unpalatable about it. There is no such thing as "Isolationism," pure and simple; there is no such thing as "Internationalism," complete and 100 per cent. There are only combinations of the two, leaning first one way, then another. There are only practical courses of action to be chosen in specific circumstances. No one can seriously maintain, for instance, that the present position of the United States in the world is either completely "isolationist" or "internationalist." It is true that the people have clearly indicated their fervent desire that the United States shall not become a full-fledged belligerent in the war now raging in Europe. But that does not imply that it is "isolationist." We take full part in Pan American affairs, joining with the other 20 American republics in the effort to regulate our common interests by peaceful and voluntary co-operation. Is this isolation? Every conceivable facility which can properly be extended to the British and French governments has been freely given them. Every opportunity to apply American pressure to prevent extension of the war has been seized. Is this isolation? Yet the United States, ever since it rejected the League of Nations after the World War, has never ceased to make it clear that it would not take an equal part with European nations in regulating European affairs. Discussion, seeking that the United States declare whole-hog for "isolation" or "internationalism" is pointless. We shall, as a matter of fact, declare for neither. We shall continue to go from day to day what seems best to be done in the face of the day's developments and their effect on our present, their probable effect on our future. The first medical school in America was established in Philadelphia in 1761.

HOW TO EAT TO BEAT THE HEAT
By ALICE H. SMITH
Nutritionist, Cleveland Health Council

Buy Right if You Want the Budget To Keep Up With Your Stomach
Does your income keep up with your stomach? That's a question most people have to answer these days. You must eat whether you make $15 a week or $500.
But can you eat adequately on a small income? Well, that depends very much on you. You can if you want to. You can't expect hors d'oeuvres, but if you shop right you can get a balanced diet.
True, your food bill may take more of your budget than any other item; but it's worth it. Food is a form of insurance. It pays the highest dividends in health and well being. A very limited list of foods could supply you with a minimum daily diet standard accepted by health authorities. This list would be:
One quart of whole milk, or equivalent.
One pint tomatoes.

UNCLE NATCHEL says:

ROASTIN' EARS, SONNY-DEY'S SHO' NATCHEL FOOD YAS SUH!
SURE, roastin' ears are natural food for hungry folks... and mighty good food, too.
And Chilean Nitrate of Soda is natural food—and mighty good food—for hungry crops. For side-dressing this spring, use plenty of Natural Chilean Soda. Its quick-acting nitrate and its natural balance of other plant food elements, give healthy natural nourishment, just when your crops are hungriest. Side-dress liberally with Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda. That is the way to make sure of good yields, good quality and early maturity.
Chilean Nitrate is the world's only natural nitrate. Costs no more. Sold everywhere.

Twelve slices whole wheat bread. Two cups cooked whole grain cereals, plus either more cereal and or fats and sweets to furnish approximately 600 to 800 calories, depending on the activity of the person.
Not a very appetizing diet, of course, day in and day out, but it does teach us a few things. For instance, that the less money you have to spend for food the more important milk and whole grain cereals become. The backbone of low-cost diets might be considered milk—in all its forms—whole grain cereals and tomatoes, or citrus fruits.
But you want your diet cheap and attractive, too? To do that you can reduce the total amount of cereal, but you should so plan as to have at least one-half of the cereal whole grain. Next, add the less expensive varieties of green and leafy vegetables, potatoes and fruits.
Important also, especially if the amount of milk is reduced, is the addition of eggs, meat, fish, or poultry. Meat is the most costly item but, fortunately, you can eat well without meat every day.
Meat substitutes such as eggs, dried vegetables and cheese may very well be used. The organs and inexpensive cuts should be selected for low-cost diets.

Further Observances of Music Week

A program "Our American Music" was Mrs. B. C. Hyatt's contribution to music week at Brookwood School. The first part of the program consisted of the singing of an Indian song, two negro spirituals, several of Stephen Foster's songs, a cowboy song, and "Arkansas." Brief talks on musical subjects were made by the following students, Jo Ann Ellen, Jimmy Dick Hammonds, Vivian Hardin, Darrel Crank, Felba Grisham, W. H. Hunter, Jr., Lawrence Hazzard, Elsie Elder, and Patsy Caldwell.

Mrs. M. C. Butler presented the program to the students at Oglesby, Palsley, and High Schools. She familiarized the audience with the value of National Music Week and traced its progress. Miss Mary Louise Keith, Harriet Story, and Mrs. Hendrix Spraggins sang an arrangement of Joyce Kilmer's "Trees." They were accompanied by Mrs. Edwin Stewart at the piano.

shares than Oslo and Trondheim and Bergen are from London. Our Philippine defense problem is more difficult than the allied problem in Norway.

Informed military opinion warns: "Get out before we're kicked out!"

"Big lesson in Norway was the strength in narrow seas, close to land, of land-based air power against sea power."

Added sea power was used timidly and tardily, but the allies may hesitate even more the next time. Consider what Italy's planes might do off her coasts, in the narrow Mediterranean, the Adriatic and the Aegean.

Odds With Japanese
Now substitute the Philippines for Norway and put the United States in the allies' place. What would we do? Excellent military authority holds we could not, with the troops and arms we now have in the Philippines, hold the islands. The Japanese have a "ten to one chance" of capturing them before we could send strong reinforcements.

This view takes into account that Japan has more new battle-ships built and is building more than the United States. (Our newest was built in 1923.) It also takes into account that if the Japanese established aviation bases on the myriad Philippine Islands, our relief expedition would face greater difficulties than the allies did in Norway.

Instead of the narrow North Sea, American troops would have to cross 7500 miles of Pacific Ocean, menaced from flanking Japanese islands. While we got one man across, Japan could get 40, which was about how the Germans outscored the allies by way of the Oslo ferry.

So many military experts say we should get out quickly. Get out before we're kicked out. For if it is bad strategy to be too slow in attacking, as were the British in Norway, it is also bad strategy to be too slow in getting out.

Moreover, if we wait, and are kicked out, enraged public opinion may force us to spend three or four years, billions of dollars and one to 200,000 casualties to get back—what, except national pride?

The British in Norway have taught us still another lesson. If we are forced to send an expeditionary force by the Pacific, the Atlantic, or the Caribbean—to wrest from an invader territory seized and defended by shore-based aviation—then we ought to be ready to do it quickly.

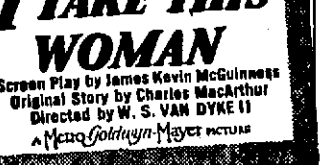

Need Force Ready to Move
First requirement is control of the seas by which an invader might pass. Our naval aviation would help; warships could be safer against splinter damage—and naval constructors have not been utterly blind to the warning in the skies.

Second requirement is that we have an expeditionary force ready and equipped. Equipment is now the army's main problem, thanks to congressional economies in a presidential year.

Clearly, an expeditionary force landing against shore-based aviation must have enough anti-aircraft guns and pursuit planes to combat enemy bombing, plus enough artillery to secure a landing, and all under its own commander. None of the planes, for instance, must be directed from a desk as far away as was London from Trondheim.

The average annual apple harvest in the United States in recent years has been about 150,000,000 bushels.

The government carried a vote in the House of Commons on a question of confidence at conclusion of First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill's calm, almost deprecatory speech, by 281 Tory votes to 200 for the combined opposition.

Italy "At Peace"
ROME (AP)—Premier Mussolini Thursday told his Fascist followers celebrating Army and Empire day that "only facts" would break his self-imposed silence on the European war.

Il Duce thus indicated clearly to his hearers that Italy's non-belligerency remained without change until some new development in Europe's conflict plunged this country into war.

Nazis Attack at Narvik
STOCKHOLM (AP)—The German air force was reported Thursday to have dropped parachute troops just northeast of Narvik for a rear attack on the Allied forces besieging the German garrison at the Norwegian ore port.

These were said to have been reinforcements for other parachute troops dropped behind the Allied siege ring, but there was no indication whether large enough numbers had been dropped to threaten an offensive on Narvik.

The situation, was reported to have been at least temporarily stalemated by heavy snowstorms.

Allied Trooper Sunk
BERLIN (AP)—The sinking of a 7,000-ton Allied troop transport in the Narvik region of northern Norway and the destruction of an Allied submarine in Skagerrak, arm of the North sea, were reported by the German high command Thursday as new victories for the air force.

The high command said the Nazi air force also participated in fights in the Narvik region where the Allies are besieging a force of between 3,000 and 4,000 Germans.

Committee Votes for House-Adopted Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate naval committee unanimously endorsed Thursday the house-approved measure authorizing an 11 per cent increase in the navy's fighting strength.

The committee rejected, however an amendment which has provided that the 19 new combat ships authorized in the bill should become permanent additions to the fleet and be subject to replacement without further congressional action when they become obsolete.

Crackers Again Take Little Rock

Traveler Manager and Umpire Have Verbal Blows

LITTLE ROCK — Relief-pitcher Emil Lockbaum hit a crazy bouncer to the right of the box that bounced over Leroy Schalk's head and the Crackers nosed out the Travelers, 3 to 7, in 10 innings last night. The fluke hit scored Suydam with the winning run. Lockbaum held the Travelers and that was that. That is, that was that so far as the final scoring is concerned. Umpire Kober scored a couple of direct hits against the Travelers in the Chasing League. Kober ejected Manager Herb Brett in the fifth inning and First Baseman Tony Lupien in the seventh. Brett blew up when Kober declared that Jim Prendergast's drive down the third base line was foul. So the Little Rock skipper made a speech, slapped his cap in the dirt and was canned. Kober called pitchers strikes that Lupien called balls. Tony resented it in his finest Harvard accent and got the gate. Kober also came to verbal blows with Manager Paul Richards of Atlanta in the fifth over the ball and strike business. Although Richards dealt Kober a slightly stronger bit of yapping (the nouns may have been different) than Brett, Paul remained in the game. Richards was limping as the result of a sprained ankle suffered in a pregame drill. He excused himself for a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

WETHE WOMEN

By BETH MILLETT

Young mothers are the real heroines of Mother's Day 1946. Young women who, in spite of the fact that the family budget is small, have had the courage to say to a child or two: "We won't wait for security before inviting you to come and join our family. We'll let you come and take pot luck with us. Part of all we have, and will have, is yours. If it isn't quite all we would like to give you, still we feel we can make up for that by other than material advantages."

"We want you, and we'll love you. And you are welcome to share whatever there is to share."

It Means Courage and Sacrifice

It takes a great deal of courage today, more than many folks realize, for a young couple to decide to have a family. There is all the talk of "security" to stare down. There is, perhaps, the sacrifice of the mother's job and a consequent lowered standard of living to consider. There is—above all—a wide familiarity with birth control that makes it necessary for so many of today's parents to take the full responsibility for a rational decision to have a child. And so on the day when mothers of the country are having their moment of praise, let's give the young mothers a special pat on the back. It Takes Children to Make a Family

Give it to young women who have had the courage not to fall for all the "common sense" arguments against having children until one can "afford" them. They are young women wise enough to know that it takes children to make a family. They deserve that extra pat on the back. For they not only had children. They Decided to have them.

Rhubarb Is Used At Lower Cost

Rhubarb Used in Strawberry Extends Bulk

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Rhubarb used in strawberry conserve extends the bulk at lower cost. And, it not only adds some of its own desirable flavor to the conserve, but brings out the flavor of the more expensive strawberries and allows that flavor to predominate. In the recipe given below, oranges are used, too, as well as nuts to make the recipe more interesting. Cut oranges in slices not more than one-eighth inch thick, and cut strawberries crosswise in slices not more than 1/4 inch thick. Two tablespoons dried currants, 2 oranges, 2 cups water, 4 cups prepared strawberries, 2 cups prepared rhubarb, 8 cups sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup coarsely chopped nuts (optional).

Cover currants with hot water and let stand about 15 minutes. Drain. Scrub oranges, cut in quarters, remove seeds and all coarse membranes. Cut crosswise in very thin slices. Simmer, covered in water until peel is very tender.

Wash about 16-quarts strawberries. Drain, remove hulls and slice. Measure into large preserving kettle. Wash rhubarb, peel if not young and tender. Cut in 1/2-inch pieces. Measure. Add rhubarb, sugar, oranges and salt to strawberries. Cook slowly until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils, stirring constantly.

Boil rapidly until clear and desired consistency is reached, stirring frequently. Add currants and nuts; bring to a boil. Skim. Pour into clean, hot, sterilized jars or glasses and seal at once.

Pineapple Makes Jams Go Further

Fresh Mints Even Add More Flavor to Recipe

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Strawberry jam extended with fresh pineapple produces a fine flavored recipe. The fresh mint adds even more difference, and rapid cooking will preserve both the color and the flavor of the fruit.

Mixed Strawberry-Pineapple Jam

(Four half-pint jars)

One and one-half cups prepared fresh pineapple, 4 cups prepared strawberries, 4 cups sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon finely chopped mint leaves.

Take one medium, fully ripe pineapple. Remove core and "eyes." Grind using medium-coarse knife or food chopper. Measure. Simmer, covered, until tender, stirring occasionally. Wash about 1 1/2 quarts strawberries. Drain, remove hulls and slice crosswise into slices 1/4 inch thick.

Measure into large preserving kettle. Add pineapple, sugar and salt. Cook slowly until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils, stirring constantly. Boil rapidly until clear and desired consistency is reached, stirring frequently.

Add mint and bring to boil. Skim. Pour into clean, hot, sterilized jars or glasses and seal at once.

Here's another strawberry jam made inexpensive because carrots are used to extend the strawberry flavor. Shred or grate the carrots into silver-like pieces. Do not grate them to a mush.

Three cups prepared carrots, 1 1/2 cups water, 6 cups prepared strawberries, 6 cups sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Scrape, wash and coarsely shred or grate about 6 medium carrots. Cook, uncovered, in water until tender and most of the water has evaporated. Wash about 2 quarts strawberries. Drain, remove hulls, slice crosswise in slices not more than 1/4 inch thick. Measure. Place carrots, sugar, and mix well.

Bring to boil and cook 5 minutes.

Our Daily Bread

for revenue or taxing-to-keep-things-out-of-the-country.

Tariff laws deal in specific commodities, and their application is narrow and prohibitive. They are forbidden to the states by the federal constitution.

Revenue laws are universal in their application, except for certain so-called luxury items which have been especially taxed by governments all ways—such as whisky, beer, tobacco, and so forth.

An example of the newer, but still universal, revenue law is the sales tax, which has been adopted by many states, including our own.

The sales tax and the oleomargarine and butter taxes haven't the remotest connection with each other—for the one is general, and designed to raise revenue for the schools and charities; while the other two are specific commodity taxes aimed at the destruction of free exchange of goods between states.

But the more you look into this question of trade barriers between states the more difficult becomes the problem of formulating a policy which will at one and the same time take care of the revenue needs of state governments and at the same time permit absolutely free exchange of goods between states.

Take the sales tax, for instance. Its enactment, for which this newspaper fought at a time when the politicians were opposed to it, saved the public schools of our state and, specifically, our city, from shutting down.

And yet, the sales tax in its present form is not satisfactory.

It is not satisfactory to the business houses of Hope and the other cities and towns of southwestern Arkansas that lie east of Texarkana, because the Arkansas side of that border town is exempt from the sales tax.

One of three things ought to be done—and The Star is going to quiz the legislative candidates on this issue—

1. Remove Texarkana's exemption, or
2. Provide for some agreement by which the tax is collected at the stores when selling to Arkansas citizens living outside Texarkana, or
3. Provide for ports-of-entry at the three former toll-bridge stations, Index, Fulton and Garland City, where Arkansas citizens would have to declare purchases and pay tax.

This issue did not arise until after the state government freed the toll bridges.

The legislature created this problem.

It is up to the legislature to find a remedy.

Plans Underway

has devoted fully two months of each year to raising money for premiums, making preparations for the fair, putting it on a paying premium.

Fairs are generally regarded as the very best means of encouraging better agricultural practices and the Chamber of Commerce has been glad to contribute liberally in time and money to reviving the fair.

Better livestock has been offered for the past two years by offering attractive premiums in this department, with the result that last year the livestock exhibits were generally regarded as the best ever seen here.

Plans are now under way for a still better fair this fall. More premiums for exhibits and more amusements for fair-visitors. If sufficient funds are subscribed to pay premiums, the fair committee wishes to make it a "free fair" with no admission charge, as is being done in many other sections of the state and as recommended by the Extension Department of the University of Arkansas.

The Chamber of Commerce has urged the City to provide the farmers better facilities for marketing their livestock and other crops, and are now working on a plan to trademark all melons grown in this immediate section. It has been active in sponsoring the building of better farm-to-market roads and in promoting the wider use of cotton, the principal crop of Hempstead County.

nesday night, said he is "just here on a little visit."

Asked if he had any comment on reports linking his name with the governor's race, he said:

"Not at the present time. I can wait as long as any of them."

None of the two most-frequently-mentioned candidates for governor, Internal Revenue Collector Homer Adkins, and Governor Carl Bailey, have announced definitely as yet, although the deadline for filing for state, district and county office is next Wednesday noon, May 15.

Mr. McClellan was reported likely to run, several weeks ago, and then, more recently, was said to be no longer interested.

Thursday's dispatch points to the possibility of a three-cornered fight in the first primary.

States Plan Drive

Texas and Mississippi which have proved of mutual benefit to each state.

A course of action was laid out which will, it is hoped, lead to the holding of additional meetings throughout South Arkansas in order to arouse public sentiment to a realization of the effect 1,400 legislative trade barriers are having on commerce and good will between the states of the Union.

Add strawberries. Boil rapidly until clear and desired consistency is reached, stirring frequently. Skim, pour into clean hot, sterilized jars or glasses and seal at once.

First Sample Passers

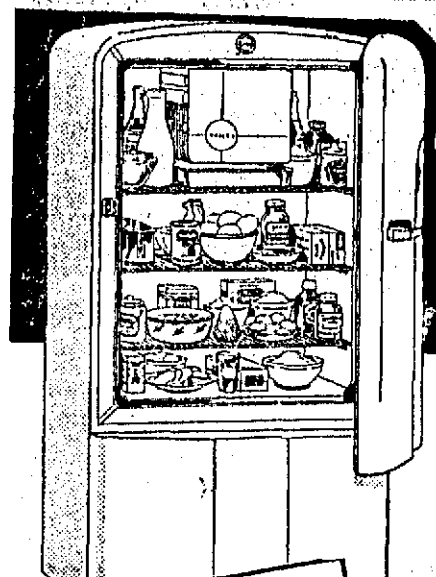

French wine sellers, years ago paraded Paris streets, blowing horns and distributing free samples of wine from wooden buckets. They were the forerunners of modern sample distributors.

Unit of Sound

A bel is a unit named by telephone engineers after Alexander Graham Bell. It signifies the ratio of energy existing between any given sound and the faintest sound the human ear can hear. A decibel is one-tenth of a bel.

SERIAL STORY BET ON LOVE BY CHARLES B. PARKER

CHAPTER XIII

SHERY awoke with a start next morning. She sat up in bed, blinked her eyes. It was full daylight—must be at least 7 o'clock, and she should have been at the stable by 5.

She must get to the track—without delay. She swung her feet around to blue slippers waiting by the bedside. Then she jumped at the sound of sharp rapping on the door.

"Who's there?" she called, throwing a quilted robe about herself. "It's Ted—me—!"

"Come right in!"

The school teacher, fully dressed, was cheer itself. "The Major said you must be taking what he calls a nap of sleep—he's gone to the track. And I thought that—well, here, take it, Sherry."

She thrust a sheaf of bills into Sherry's hand. The latter looked at them, with widening eyes. Seven $100 bank notes. The robe dropped from Sherry's shoulders. She stepped forward impulsively, threw her arms around the teacher's angular frame.

"You're a honey—you're a sweetheart—but I can't take it and I don't need it." She tried to force the money back into Ted's hand.

Ted saw that Sherry meant it. She said: "I'll take it back on one condition—you promise me that if Pepper Boy doesn't win, you will take this loan."

"I promise—that if Pepper Boy doesn't win, I'll take the loan, and give you a piece of Pepper Boy to boot!" Sherry smiled.

SHERY was the first owner in the paddock that afternoon for the second race—the Derby Trial, it was being called. Not a horse had been scratched; ten fast colts would fight it out, each inch of the mile and 70 yards. She wanted to see that every detail was perfect before her Pepper Boy went to the post.

"You know this colt, Madden—get him off smartly, make no mistakes, and win."

Madden nodded. He said: "Goin' to be a hoss-race, every foot of the way. That Castanets, the brown 'un, is speedy; and that Monitor—" Madden frowned, "he's the baby to watch. But I don't think so much of that gent'lman steeplechase guy. This here's on the flat."

"That Mr. Grant you speaking of?"

The question was asked by Willie Bond, who had hustled up to the stall. "You'll be glad to hear this," he chuckled to Sherry. "Shep Grant's four pounds overweight. Couldn't pull it down. He rides at 124 pounds—against 120 pounds on the other entries." "I told him he was a steeplechase rider," Sherry said. "What do you scale at, Madden?"

The little fellow grinned: "Not more'n 104—winter and summer. I made exact weight for this by my valet puttin' 16 pounds o' lead in that lead-pad." He indicated a pad beneath Pepper Boy's saddle.

At that moment the bugle blew, calling the field to the post. "Excuse me, my dear—business to attend to," Willie Bond said, and dashed off toward the grandstand.

"Well, I like that!" Sherry was saying to herself when a familiar voice spoke at her elbow: "Come on and watch this one with me."

It was Paul Wharton. Sherry had so much on her mind that she forgot to be distant. "Why, Paul—where've you been keeping yourself?" She was really glad to see him.

"Might ask you the same," he smiled. "Been busy—as you've been; but come on—they'll be at the post in a minute."

A roar went up from watching thousands as the field leaped forward in a perfect start.

"Say!" Paul Wharton exclaimed. "Look at your colt—he's improved!"

Pepper Boy, breaking from the extreme outside, was shooting ahead—Madden was trying to cut a long diagonal line across the field—trying to get to the rail at the head of the turn.

"But look there!" Wharton shouted again. "That Shep's not bad, is he? Watch him!" Shep Grant was hustling his bay, Monitor, to the front on the rail—he had blocked the fast-moving brown, Castanets, who had tried to take it.

Now, as they reached the first turn, the field was split into two divisions. Three horses in the first group: Shep Grant with Monitor on the rail; Farwell on Castanets next to him; and Madden running alongside on Pepper Boy. Seven horses were grouped behind.

"Too bad Madden couldn't get the rail. He's dropping back." So he was.

The horse is in stride—Madden's giving him a breather," Sherry said.

"Maybe," Wharton muttered. "But I don't like the way Grant is taking that nag of his to the front—Boy!—He's a length ahead as they start down the back stretch."

"He's burning his colt up," said Sherry—and she hoped it was true.

"Maybe," Wharton muttered again. "I'm not sure about Grant—you know it; but just the same he's a darn good judge of pace."

"He's four pounds overweight," Sherry said, as she noted that Pepper Boy was third—and running easily—at the half-mile.

"Is he?" Wharton looked at her a minute. "Then he's got an advantage over all the rest of you."

"How so?"

"All the other jockeys are very light boys—and their saddle-pads are filled with lead. That's dead weight—and mighty heavy. Shep is all live weight."

"What of it?" she snapped. "There's Madden going into contention—now."

THE boy was starting his run with Pepper Boy. He lifted his reins at the three-eighths pole, as they went into the far turn. Sherry knew he was clucking to Pepper Boy—she saw her game little colt spring forward—Madden was shooting into a space between Castanets and the rail! Pepper Boy got the rail—was alongside Castanets—was drawing away from Castanets—was shooting at a space between Monitor and the rail, ahead.

"Not this time!" Wharton whistled. "Madden almost got in that opening—but Shep has an eye in the back of his head. See, he's drawn close to the rail himself."

So he had. But Madden was taking Pepper Boy out—now they were straightening down the home stretch: Monitor in front by a length—Pepper Boy second—and the brower, Castanets, coming up fast on Pepper Boy's flanks. Behind them thundered seven other horses—vainly trying to catch up.

"Now he's coming—in the last furlong!" Sherry yelled. Madden had lashed out with his bat. Pepper Boy leaped forward. His nose was now at Monitor's neck; but Castanets surged forward on the outside—even with Pepper Boy.

The three colts—so close together—that a handkerchief could have almost covered them—swept down to the wire together. Now they were head and head, nose and nose—

They flashed under the wire. (To Be Continued)

Adams' Finishes Brits History on Hopeful Note

James Truslow Adams' "Empire on the Seven Seas" (Scribner's Sons, $3.50) is the second and final volume of his notable history of the British, begun with "Building the British Empire," published in 1938. It opens with the French Revolution and closes on the start of the New World War. It is, therefore, extremely timely. You can do no better than read it thoroughly (and it is thoroughly good reading) for a background to the whole fateful picture in Europe. Mr. Adams, though his book is objective enough, is pro-British. Any overthrow of the Empire, he says, would be a catastrophe scarcely thinkable. But he doubts it can be overturned as he concludes in this sweeping summing-up:

Today they (the British) are facing perhaps the greatest crisis in their history, but we have seen how in the past they have encountered one crisis after another which, like hammer blows on the anvil of fate, have sharpened them to what they are. If they have gained a reputation for stupidity and muddling through, nevertheless they always have won through and have gained the rule of a quarter of the earth and five hundred million people.

Their little nation faced extinction at the hands of the mighty power of Spain but the great Armada was defeated and scattered. They faced a world against them in the war of the American Revolution. They lost the colonies which formed our United States but from apparent ruin of their empire they built one mightier than before.

The genius of Napoleon seemed invincible. The whole of Europe lay at his feet, England, deserted by every ally, fought on. The struggle lasted for twenty years and at the end the fallen dictator was carried to his island exile on a British battleship, and liberty was saved.

A century later, in the greatest war

Hudson Bay Open to War Attack

Should Establish Patrol Throughout the Year

AP Feature Service

"North America can be attacked tomorrow. Canada can be smashed into helplessness at one blow. The United States could hardly be quickly vanquished, but her boasted security is nothing but empty confidence that could be exploded with terrifying consequences, and this may happen with the next rising of the sun."

This Jeremiah is preached by H. Dyson Carter, a Winnipeg consulting engineer and author, in "See of Destiny," just published (by Greenberg).

The sea he speaks of is Hudson Bay, which he calls America's back door, wide open and inviting any enemy.

Carter's book is based upon personal observation and study, but he says experts have agreed on many of his conclusions.

Defended by a Pistol

"Hudson Bay," he says, "is the sea and the coast our admirals forgot on paper. Hudson Bay is the perfect attack base from which raiders can paralyze the nerve centers of all Eastern and Mid-Continental America.

"East, West and South, we are secure, provided our one-ocean navy is not divided by a doubt attack. But the northern sea, with a coastline that is as long as Atlantic or Pacific shores, is defended by an ice-breaker and a policeman's revolver."

Carter says hostile craft, loaded with knocked-down airplanes, could enter Hudson Strait "with no opposition whatever," close the strait and establish bases for assembly of the planes.

At what home base would the enemy outfit such an expedition in time of war? By what route would the ships reach Hudson Strait, evading the Al-lived patrol in the ocean approaches? "Such questions," contends Carter, "are those of a naive naval college cadet, of one unacquainted with the history of the World War and with subsequent world political developments."

Submarines Can Go There

"How was the German navy able to maintain secret submarine refueling and restocking bases in every ocean during the entire four years of the first struggle, and long after German warships had been scoured from the seas? How is it possible for Hitler's undersea fleet to repeat that history now?"

"Two elementary truths are sufficient: the oceans of the world are very large; international fascism has powerful friends in the most unexpected places."

Carter's book was written before Germany invaded Denmark and Norway. It is made more thought-provoking by the fact that Greenland, a Danish colony, is within easy striking distance of North America.

President Roosevelt, Carter points out, promised to defend Canada with all of the resources at his command, should the Dominion ever be threatened.

"But the truth is that the United States could no more rush to the defense of Canada than to the defense of her own Pacific coast, if that coast had no fleet, no planes and not a single shore battery."

Carter's Conclusions

As to steps that should be taken to lessen the menace of America's fourth coastline, Carter suggests:

1. Seal Hudson Strait with mines during the winter months.

2. Erect coastal fortifications at two or three strategic points facing the entrance channels.

3. Assign a squadron of suitable armed ships to permanent patrol and anti-submarine duty in the approaches to Hudson Strait.

4. Establish extensive air patrols throughout the coastal and inland regions.

5. Set up a chain of air bases south of the uninhabited northland and fringing the settled regions of Canada, where large fleets of the fastest attack ships can be held in readiness for alarm from the northern patrols.

Arizona is sometimes known as the "Valentine State" from the fact that it was admitted to the union on February 14, 1912.

Starved for Safety

Baby puffins, birds of the Far North, are deserted by their parents to starve them enough to permit their safe descent from their home on high cliffs. If allowed to make their descent in a full, normal condition, they would crash on the rocks below, being unable to check their weight with their small wings.

Diversified

Although Leonardo da Vinci was best known as a painter of art, he also was an accomplished sculptor, architect, musician, engineer, and writer.

They still aren't rationing food in a lot of European countries, they've toughnuts.
